Clean Communication and Keen Creativity Monthly Tips

The ultimate act of creativity, writing and reading tips for the summer...

I was so crazy-busy during the last couple of months that I just realized the May issue had a technical glitch. (oops!) So this issue includes April and May posts.

I've been getting a lot of questions about writing, so I'm currently doing a series of writing posts. If writing has intrigued you, maybe this is your summer to give it a try. If you have a specific topic you'd like more info on, please let me know at newsletter@michellezavala.com.

I hope the summer is shaping up nicely for you. Grab a cool drink and check out these recent blog posts -- Happy Summer!

Writing, reading and the lure of television (May 27, 2010)

Reading is an important part of writing. But you have to turn off the boob tube to get things done. Why not take a break from TV this summer?

Shut up and write (May 21, 2010)

Writer Natalie Goldberg offers excellent advice: "Shut up and write."

The ultimate act of creativity (April 30, 2010)

When things aren't going as planned, you may have to tweak or even make a dramatic change to your approach, your direction or your attitude. And that's when your creativity kicks in.

Wanted: Face-to-face communication (April 15, 2010)

Tired of staring at your computer screen? Refresh yourself with a few minutes of a little face-to-face communication.

Wishing you a Refreshing and Productive Day,
